

Machines Will Never Replace Human Beings

Written by Darcie

Machines will never replace human beings. When you need to get certain things done, you'll always need a person to run and help get the work done.

Machines will never be able to set a table or help you fix the cable.

Human beings will always be there to give you some loving tender care.

Machines will never miss you and they certainly can't kiss you.

Machines will never make a bed or help you make a loaf of bread.

Human beings will always love you more than a machine and that is what I mean.

Machines can never be friends with you and cheer you up, when you're feeling blue.

Even though machines are getting more advanced every day, they will never replace human beings in any way.
